SHIPWRECKED SEAMEN

They Tell Their Story About Spain's Cruelty.

WERE TREATED IN BAD SHAPE

Huddled in a Small Cell and Compelled to Sleep on the Concrete Flooring—Watched all the Time By Guards—They Told the Consul at Havanna.

New York, November 17.—The thirteen shipwrecked seamen of the steamer Coila, who were brought to this port yesterday by the steamship Yucatan from Havanna were very bitter in their denunciation of the Spanish officers in Cuba, and in fact everything Spanish when they appeared before the British consul to-day in order to get their discharge and tickets to their respective homes.

Jacob Moore, colored, who was shipped on board the Coila as an apprentice, told the story of the cruel way he had been treated during his stay in Cuba. He said that after the Coila had almost reached Havanna, and began to sink so rapidly that it was thought best to abandon her which was done at 6 o'clock on the night of November 4, the entire crew put out in the ship's boats and after rowing several hours, reached the river Ganiqurnico. At a town at the river's mouth they were cruelly treated. On the following day they were taken to Port Mariel under guard of a troop of Spanish cavalry and thrown into prison there. They were all huddled into one cell, and were compelled to sleep on the concrete flooring, not even being allowed to use their dirty bags as head rests nor were they allowed to get the most necessary toilet articles. Spanish soldiers were on guard outside of the cell door day and night and watched their every movement.

The day following their imprisonment young Moore was sent for by the officer in command and asked whether he could speak Spanish. He gave the room full of officers to understand as best he could that he could not understand their language, whereupon one of them felled him to the ground by a blow on the ear with the butt of his revolver.

John De Lory here took up the story.

"After they had knocked the senses out of Moore," he said, "and while he was regaining consciousness they sent for me. The first question they put to me was: Are you an Englishman or an American? I told them I was an Englishman, whereupon one of them said: You lie, you dog of an American, and struck me over the head with a cane. I was then given to understand by motions that I was to have my throat cut and then be shot.

"I had almost persuaded them that I was an Englishmen, when they discoverad an American flag tatooed on my left hand. This acted on them like a red flag to a bull and they sprang upon me and struck me repeatedly in the face.

"They then called in a squad of soldiers who were given some orders, upon receiving they all pointed their guns at me. I told them I was an English subject and dared them to fire. This action of mine seemed to cool their ardor, and Moore who had by this time come to his senses, was again brought before them.

They pointed their guns at him and pricked his flesh with the ends of their swords until he cried in agony.

"After about two hours of this treatment they allowed us to go back to our cell.

"When I told our consul in Havanna of the treatment we had been subjected to he told me that it really was not anything out of the common and not worth bothering about. He told me, however, not to say anything about the matter when I reached the states, as those Americans have so much to say."

The soothing, healing effects of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is felt almost instantly. There is no other cough medicine that combines so many virtues. Sold by all dealers.

A Maniac at Large.

Tyrone, Pa., November 18.—William Hardy, a late inmate of the Harrisburg insane asylum, who had been permitted to return to his home here, became a raving maniac last night. After being put in the lockup he tried to brain Officer Miller with a hatchet, and later succeeded in escaping. He secured a hatchet and large knife and first going to the Friendship engine house chased everybody out of the building. He then went home and tried to kill his wife and children, but the police appeared promptly and captured him. He was guarded all night and this morning was taken back to the asylum.

THE MURDER AT ROBERTSDALE

Four of the Defendants Held and One Discharged.

Sunday a week ago, five Italians named Daniel, Lawrence, Louis and Alexander Cheraz and Venance Chillon were arrested on a charge of being implicated in the murder of Peter Venzelola, at Robertsdale, on the night of the 7th of November.

The defendants had a hearing before Judge Bailey yesterday on a writ of habeas corpus, upon the petition of their counsel, W. M. and R. W. Williamson. A number of witnesses were called, and the testimony of the Italian witnesses was interpreted by Mrs. Louise Castleman.

The principal witness was Mrs. Peter Cordett, an Italian woman, who, it appears, was the only woman at the dance in the "batch," or shanty, near which the fight occurred. She says after a stone was thrown into the batch, she saw Lawrence Cheraz going out of the room with something like a miner's auger, and upon his return he said he gave him (meaning Peter Venzelola) a good knock. The other Cheraz boys were engaged in the fight. Venace Chillon remained in the house with her, and was not engaged in the fight.

Judge Bailey discharged Chillon, but held the Cheraz boys in $2000 bail each.

Here is a New Discovery.

Bayonne, N. J., November 17.—William A. Eddy has discovered that photographs of houses and streets can be taken at night, owing to the present wide prevalence of electric light. The first outdoor electric light night photograph on record was taken by him at 9.45 p. m., November 8, 1896, and includes a faint view of the corner of Avenue D and Fourth street, Bayonne, followed by a clear view at 9.50 p. m., of the corner and the grounds formerly owned by Dr. Payne.

On November 13, twelve exposures were made at Bayonne, between 11 p. m. and midnight, and November 15, between 8 p. m. and 1 a. m., twelve exposures were taken in New York, including Madison Square, the New York post office, Herald Square, Twenty-third street and Broadway, and others. The photographs in New York reveal whole blocks and streets. Mr. Eddy says the discovery will be valuable to the press by making it possible to make important photographs in time for the morning editions. Some of the Bayonne photographs are so clear that the carbon in an electric light globe is discernible and the houses are as clear as if taken by daylight. Dr. W. H. Mitchell and G. S. Bogert, of Bayonne, were present at the New York experiments. Mr. Eddy says he will gain nothing financially by the discovery since it can neither be copyrighted nor patented. He is preparing to take mid-air kite photographs of electric lighted cities.

It Was a Black Bear.

Canton, Pa., November 17.—Lucretia Ritter, a 19 year old girl, who teaches school in the Elk Lake district, Sullivan county, had a thrilling experience with a black bear yesterday. While walking alone through the woods she spied what she thought was a yearling calf in the path ahead of her, but the beast proved to be a full grown bear.

Bruin came towards her with mouth open. Miss Ritter made for a crooked tree close by and managed to climb to a fork twelve feet above ground. The bear fell to eating the contents of her lunch basket, while she screamed lustily for help. Having devoured the lunch, the bear demolished the artificial roses and birds on the girls hat, which fell to the ground during the climb. In her frantic efforts to get higher Miss Ritter's clothing became fast on a broken limb and she could neither get up or down.

The bear made no effort to climb the tree, but held the school marm a prisoner in the tree nearly three hours, or until Farmer Shunk came along and discovered the girl's plight. He was compelled to crawl up into the tree and lift her down. Once on the ground Miss Ritter fainted.

Died.

In Milesburg, on Monday, October 12, 1896, of membranous croup, Lila Helen Grafmyre, daughter of Boyd Grafmyer, aged 2 years, 8 months and 8 days.

The little crib is empty now.
The little clothes laid by,
A mother's hope, a father's joy.
In death's cold arms doth lie.
God needed one more angel child
Amidst his shining band,
And so he bent with loving smile,
And clasped our darling's hand.

TERRIBLE FREIGHT WRECK

Dory Baney of This Place Instantly Killed.

FIFTEEN FREIGHT CARS PILED UP

Lemuel Stevens of Bellwood Badly Injured—Wreck Occurred Near Unionville About Six O'clock This Morning—Traffic on the Bald Eagle Branch Stopped Until Noon.

A frightful railroad wreck occurred about 6 o'clock this morning on the Bald Eagle Valley railroad near Unionville. The full particulars cannot be learned at this writing, but fifteen cars were wrecked, Theodore Baney of this place was instantly killed, and several others were badly injured. Lemuel Stevens of Bellwood, but well known in this place, had his left leg cut off above the knee.

As near as can be learned the wreck happened in the following manner: A heavy freight train of 60 cars mostly loaded with coal, under the charge of Conductor Wm. Snyder, and with Engineer John Priest at the throttle, was coming along about half a mile from Unionville, when the axle on the eighth car broke. Instantly all was confusion. The eight cars next to the engine piled one on top of the other. Back of these was a long string of cars that remained on the track and in this portion of the train another break occurred, piling up eight or ten more cars.

Baney, who was on his way home from Altoona, was buried under a car load of coal. His neck was broken and his body badly crushed. His remains were brought to Bellefonte this forenoon. He was about 23 years of age and a son of Eli Baney, the expressman. He had been in Altoona since the day after the election, but he was out of work and out of money, and hearing of a few days work that he could get at home, in company with Lemuel Stevens started for Bellefonte, with the above fatal result. Baney was a single man, with no one depending upon him for support. He was a jovial, good-hearted young man, and while he had his faults, seemed to be well liked by his friends and acquaintances.

Lemuel Stevens jumped from the train to save himself, but was too late and was thrown under the wheels and lost his left leg, as above stated. He is about 25 years of age and a son of Robert Stevens, an engineer on the Bell's Gap railroad. He was at one time a hostler at Garman's Hotel. His parents lived for a long time at Milesburg, where he is well known. Stevens was taken to the Altoona City Hospital for treatment. His father at one time was engineer at Mann's Axe works.

There were said to be ten men stealing their passage on the train and but five have been heard from. Some of them may have jumped and saved themselves, escaping to the woods before they were seen. And yet some of these may be buried under the coal.

None of the train hands were injured. The road has been blocked all day, passengers, baggage and mail having to be transferred from one train to the other.

A GOOD WIFE.

The following receipt for the choice of a wife seems a good one:

As much of beauty as preserves effection,
Of modest defiance as claims protection
A docil mind subservient to correction;
A temper led by reason and reflection,
And every passion kept in due subjection·
Just faults enough to keep her from perfection,
Find this my friend and then make your selection.

—From the House Wife of New York Nov. number.

The Republican's Sound Money Jollification on last Saturday night tempted some of our Staid Silver advocates to make a sly visit to Bellefonte to see the Golden advocates enjoy themselves hugely over the results of the late election. The coon, rooster and Bryan dangling in the air on top of a pole in the hands of a boy made some Silverites very angry.

The parade was a success and it drew a large crowd to Bellefonte, and the merchants profited by it in having a good many valuable customers.

Will Bless and Hoist the Bell.

Rev. Father Kumerant, pastor of St. Peter and Paul's Catholic church of Philipsburg informs us that to-day, Tuesday at 11 a. m. has been set apart as the time for special service in connection with the blessing and hoisting of the handsome bell recently donated for the new church by their distinguished townsman, Hon. J. N. Casanova. The services will take place in the vestibule of the church, the blessing to be bestowed by the Very Rev. P. J. Sheridan, V. G. of the Erie dioces, assisted by clergymen from neighboring places. The ceremonies will be brief, lasting about one half hour, at the conclusion of which the bell will be hoisted and placed in proper position in the belfry.

The bell is very fine, made of the best Michigan copper and East India tin, and weighs 3250 pounds. It was made at the famous Henry McShane foundry, Baltimore, Md., and cost the donor Mr. Casanova the sum of $500. It was kindly given by the latter in memory of his mother, and contains in raised letters the following inscription in the Spanish language: "To Sts. Peter and Paul's Church, in memory of Petrona Rodriquez de Casanova, 1896.

The manufacturers will send a representative there to assist in hoisting the bell, and see that it is in good working order. To Mr. Casanova will be given the honor of being the first to pull the rope that will send forth to the breeze the sweet notes of the new bell.

Covers for Bicycles.

An English idea is covers to fit over bicycle wheels, which may be made of handsome cretonne or plain material, outlined with some appropriate design. The seams should be bound with bright colored braide.

These covers can be made very attractive and serve the double purpose of protecting the bicycle and one's clothing where the machine has to be kept in the small rooms of a flat, or in the hallway. A rubber cover for the machine is not so attractive, but is much more practical especially in the vicinity of the seashore.

The idea, so far as New York City is concerned, has thus far been limited to a water proof and dust proof cover, fastened over the bicycle lamp, in the daytime.

—The following changes have been made in the employees of the American Express Co.,: Mr. Nelson Robb of Nittany takes Mr. Waddle's place as agent at this place. Mr. Philip Waddle becomes messenger between Mill Hall and this place. Mr. Harry Fritz, the former messenger will remove with his family to Williamsport where he has secured another position.

GUILTY OF ABDUCTION

How Swindler Valentine Met Miss Wintage.

SAVED IN A TROLLY ACCIDENT

The Acquaintance Quickly Ripened And He Made Her His Common Law Wife—Both Had Been Arrested For Passing Forged Checks.

Brooklyn, Nov. 18.— William F. Valentine, the alleged swindler, who is believed to be one of a gang of sharpers that has successfully operated in several cities, was arrainged this morning to plead to indictment for forgery and grand larceny, and abduction and assault recently found by the grand jury.

District Attorney Backus moved his trial on the charge of forgery in obtaining $30 from Henry Batterman on a forged check, but Valentine pleaded guilty to the indictment. Then Mr. Backus said he would prefer to have his plea taken for the second count in the indictment which was forgery in the second degree, and Valentine's counsel agreed to this.

The district Attorney then moved for the trial of the prisoner on the charge of abduction and assault in living with May Wintage at No. 373 Adams street while she was under age. Valentine pleaded guilty to abduction, which plea was entered and he was remanded for sentence.

District Attorney Backus later consented to divulge the mysterious evidence which he has held back so long in connection with the alleged gang of swindlers. It is the first official statement made, and is to the effect that Valentine met May Wintage in 1892 for the first time, when she was injured by falling from a trolly car, and he saved her from being run over. The acquaintance quickly ripened, Valentine representing himself as a wealthy builder, and giving his name as Edgars. The couple met several times afterwards and went to Staten Island and Ulmer Park for pleasure trips. She finally consented to live with him, as his wife on assurance that under the laws of God and man she would be his wife as much as if they had gone through a ceremonial marriage.

Miss Wintage told her parents that she had married Valentine in New York city church. After living with him for some time, she discovered that he had a wife and family in Hempstead, L. I., but he said he was justified in leaving his wife, when the girl told him of what she had learned. A meeting of the wife and Miss Wintage was brought about, and when the latter discovered that Mrs. Valentine was a respectable woman, she begged her supposed husband to leave her and return to his rightful wife. The girl then wrote her parents, asking forgiveness for having deceived them. She asked permission to return home and find work. This letter was written on paper headed, "Standard Coal and Oil Company, capital stock $2,000,000, fully paid, non-assessable, J. R. McLaughlin, secretary and treasurer; Edward Tolefree, president; Main office Washington, D. C., New York office, 123 Liberty street."

On Valentine's return from an absence of some days, May told him she would leave him. Then he told her that if she did she would be prosecuted for passing counterfeit checks, and he would skip the country. It was the first time she heard of bad checks having been passed. The girl says that when she still insisted on going away he grasped her by the throat and threatened to kill her and said that if she dared to tell anybody about him she would be killed. Frightened by his violence she remained with him. Then he wrote a postal card to her father, saying that May did not mean what she said in the letter and assuring him that everything was all right. Shortly after this Valentine and May Wintage were arrested for passing bad checks on Adams & Company. Valentine got out of the scrape by having a friend make good the amount. May begged the man to settle all the forged checks, but he did not do so. Miss Wintage then left Valentine and went to live at 120 Ralph avenue, where she attempted to commit suicide on October 28 last. While she was in St. Mary's hospital Valentine was arrested for passing a check for $30 on H. Batterman.

Valentine said that Job L. Bough signed the name of L. Monk to the Batterman check.

A MAN'S A MAN.

"A man's a man," says Robert Burns,
"For a' that, and a' that;"
But though the song be clear and strong,
It lacks one note, an' a' that.
The lout who'd shirk his honest work,
Yet claims his pay, and a' that,
Or beg a bed for lazy head,
Is not a man for a' that.

There's wanting, too, anither note,
That wad ha'e been sae oat
In that grand song that Robbie wrote,
For a 'that and a' that.
The brute that beats into the streets
His wife and bairns, an' a' that,
Wi' cronies stops at whisky shops,
Is not a man for a' that.

Anither note is lacking, too,
This plowman might ha'e sung;
'Tis just as pat and just as true
As those that aff he flung.
The man by stealth who piles up wealth,
And grinds God's poor, an' a' that,
Clutches his purse with dying curse,
Is not a man for a' that.

A PERILOUS GAME.

When, in 1843 I was a junior clerk in the house of Richepin, in Paris, my finances allowed me to indulge in no amusements but chess; and, as a constant habitue of the Cafe de la Regence, I had attained a certain degree of force. In order to conceal the poverty of my appointments I maintained the most rigid secrecy at the Regence as to who or what I was, and was universally supposed to be living on my means. One evening while myself and other clerks were making up the monthly mail for Constantinople, the office door flew open and our chief, Richepin, stood before us, his face pale and troubled.

"Gentlemen," said he, "France is no longer France! The whirlwind has smitten her! I may be announcing to you the ruin of the house of Richepin and Brothers! Napoleon Bonaparte has left Elba, has landed in France; the Army join him, and his eagles are flying to Paris with lightning speed. Louis XVIII, will be off for Flanders in a few days. The folly of the Bourbons again breaks the peace of Europe, and France is about to plunge anew into a thirty years' war! The Emperor must have money instantly—Louis is even now packing up the crown jewels, and all his private treasures of gold and diamonds to boot. The Emperor will tender me his note of hand!'

In our vaults lie five millions of gold Napoleons, and doubtless Talleyrand and Fouche will try to make their peace with Bonaparte, by advising that this sum should be seized as a forced loan.

"But," asked a clerk, "can we not hide the gold?"

"Where can we hide it that its place of concealment will not be known? I must give up this vast sum, or perhaps be tried by courtmartial and shot for petty treason. If my brother in London were only here to give his counsel."

"The Emperor cannot be here yet; why not send to your brother," asked the clerk.

"The barriers are closed, and guarded by artillery with loaded guns. I applied myself for a passport and was refused. None may pass but one courier for each Ambassador. The messenger of the English Embassy this moment leaves with despatches for the Court of St. James. He is a German, named Schmidt. I have spoken with him and have offered him 500 pounds to bear a letter to my brother and the man refuses. The moment he communicates his news in London, the British funds fall ten per cent, as they will do here to-morrow morning and in both cities we hold consols to an immense amount!"

I had not spoken, but eagerly watched and devoured every word, every look, of the several speakers.

"If being in London three hours before the courier may advantage the house," cried I, "here do I undertake the task. Give me some token of evidence to hand your brother, sir, gold for my expenses on the road, and trust to me."

"What mean you? Are you mad?" said Richepin.

"I have my plan," returned I. "Oh, do but trust me. I am acquainted with this courier—with Schmidt."

Here I must explain the nature of the relations that exist between me and Schmidt. We were both frequenters at the Cafe de la Regence. Schmidt was the slowest chess-player I have ever seen. We had mos[illegible] singled out each other as antagonists because pretty evenly matched. Schmidt loved me, as I knew, because it was not every man who would play with him. He no more suspected me as being a banker's clerk than of being King of the Sandwich Islands.

The English Embassy at this time occupied a hotel adjoining the Cafe de la Regence, at the door of which latter temple of fame I planted myself in a careless looking attitude. At the porte cochers at the British envoy's hotel stood a light traveling carriage. I was in the nick of time. Schmidt was ready; five horses were being caparisoned for the journey. I went up to the carriage and addressed my friend:

"How's this, Schmidt? No chess to-night? I've been looking for you in the Regence!"

"Chess! have you heard the news? I'm off this morning for London with despatches."

"I don't envy you your journey!" said I. "What a bore, shut up in that machine all night; to be sure you can read all the way, and yes, you can study our new gambit!"

"What a pity you can't go with me!" responded Schmidt, in the pride of five horses and a carriage all to himself, we'd play chess all the way!"

My heart leaped to my mouth "Don't invite me twice!" said I laughing.

"Come along then, my dear fellow!" replied Schmidt; "make the jest earnest. I've a famous night-lamp, and am in no humor to sleep."

"Do you really mean what you say Schmidt?"

"Indeed, I do."

"Then I'll tell you what," said I, "I'm your man, and famous fun we'll have."

I darted into the cafe, snatched up the first-class board and men that came to hand, and stood in a moment again by the side of my friend.

Luckily, my adversary was the slowest of all slow players. This gave me time to ruminate over a scheme that was maturing in my brain. By this time we had reached that little village, I forget the name of the dog-hole, seven miles on the Paris side of Boulogne. I easily prevailed on Schmidt to alight at the little inn, which was also the post-house, for a quarter of an hour to snatch a hot dinner so, chess board in hand, Schmidt went into a dark, back room to study his coming move while dinner was dishing. I rushed outside and demanded—what think you? A blacksmith! I was gazing on our carriage when the man stood before me. No one was within hearing.

"What a curious thing is a carriage like this, friend!" said I musingly. "Now, what would follow were that large screw there taken out? Answer me promptly."

"What would follow? Why, the coach would go on very well for a few hundred yards, and then would overturn with a crash, and smash all to shivers."

"Hum! said I, "And what if only that tiny screw were drawn?"

"The body of the vehicle would equally fall upon the hind axle, but without material consequences, causing, however some considerable delay."

Are you the blacksmith always in attendance here? I mean, if this carriage overturned descending yonder hill, would it fall to your lot to right it?"

"It would!" and the Frenchman's eye sparkled with intelligence.

"Here are ten Napoleons. Give me out that little screw, I have a fancy for it" And the screw was in my hand. "I hope no accident will happen," I continued: "but should the carriage overturn, have it brought back here to repair, and take a couple of hours to finish the job in, that you may be sure the work is done properly you know. And remember that a man who earns ten napoleous so lightly has two ears, but only one tongue."

I pocketed the precious screw, and rushed into dinner while the horses were putting to. We left the inn at full gallop. A very small quantity of pa ace like ours proved a dose. The postillions pulled up.

"We are overset!" I cried.

"God forbid!" said Schmidt. What's to be done?"

I had already sprung out.

"There seems to be little the matter, Schmidt. Back the carriage to the inn and all will be right in a twinkling."

My friend, the blacksmith, assured us he would repair all damage directly; and, while he began to hammer away, we philosophers coolly resumed our chess in the inner parlor. The position of the game was now highly critical both for Richepin and Napoleon, and also for me and Schmidt. I felt my antagonist must occupy twenty heavenly minutes over his coming move. I left the room and darted to the stable. A groom was busy at his work.

"Have you a saddle horse ready for the road? I am sent on in advance. Tell the landlord my friend within settles all Give me the bridle."

I mounted and galloped off like the wind for Boulogne. In a few minutes more I had alighted at the waterside. I selected a stout, trim-looking boat and leaped on board, leaving my horse to his meditations.

"For Dover!" cried I to the master of the boat. "My pay is five guineas a man. I must have eight men on board in case it comes on to blow. Be smart, fellows, and away!"

The men were as active as eels, a sailor severed the rope, heavy brown sails were flung to the wind, and we were sweeping across the waters.

By half-past nine I had left Dover, and was tearing along the London road behind our fleet horses. My carriage pulled up before the gates of Richepin's villa before 5 o'clock in the morning. In five minutes more I found myself by the conjugal bed of Richepin.

By the time he was fully wakened up, I handed in my credentials. I rapidly explained the circumstances of the case, and minutely detailed the situation of our Paris house.

"Return to France," said he, "to my brother with all speed. Spare no exertion to be at Paris some little time before Napoleon enters. The Napoleon dynasty will not last long. The army will declare in his favor, but the nation, torn by war, will not stand by him. The problem to be solved is this: To keep the gold out of his hands, and yet to remain friends with him And thus would I have my brother proceed. We have undue bills to the amount of millions and millions flying about Paris. Every holder of a note of hand will be glad to allow 10 per cent. discount for gold. Any premium will be given for gold to hoard during the crisis. Seek out the holders of our paper, call it all in and pay it off in gold. Call in all. Lock your paper in your desk, and the ship will ride out the storm. The bills will be useless to Napoleon; gold alone will meet his views."

I reached Dover and Calais without an accident, and reeled into our Paris counting house, more dead than alive, soon after noon on the 8th of March. I need not say how delighted was our French Richepin at the counsel I brought. All hands went immediately to work to carry out the scheme. All our gold was paid away; barely a single twenty franc piece remained in our treasure vaults. We stood upon our bills and waited the event.

Bonaparte had landed in France on March 1st; on the 21st of March the Emperor had a grand levee at the Palace of the Tuileries, to which our chief went, though with a trembling heart. Bonaparte looked at him from head to foot, with anything but a pleasant expression of countenance, and turned on his heel with this significant phrase: "I see there are two Napoleons in Europe."

My friend Schmidt never can have forgotten the last game of chess we played together. We have never seen each other since I left him studying how to parry the impending checkmate. Should we ever meet I shall be happy to finish the game.

Grace White's Downfall.

Erie, Nov. 12.—Grace White, a dry goods clerk, was convicted in court yesterday upon her own admission of receiving a stolen bicycle, and unless clemency is extended she will go to prison.

Grace White came to Erie from Williamsport about a year ago, and worked in a leading dry goods store and was highly esteemed. She was arrested a few days ago as she was leaving the city for Detroit on a charge of having a stolen bicycle in her possession.

At the trial of the case she created a sensation by implicating a well known married business man, whom she said she was going to [illegible] in Detroit.

W. C. T. U. Convention.

St. Louis, Nov. 12.— The 23d annual convention of the W. C. T. U. will be called to order Friday morning by Miss Frances E. Willard, president. The social purity branch had its first session this evening, under the direction of Dr. Mary Wood Allen, superintendent. The subject discussed was "equal social and moral responsibility for man and woman."

Miss Willard was suffering so much from fatigue of travel to-day that she was confined to her bed. The board of national officers held a business session this morning at Miss Willard's bedside.

Harrison Talks.

Indianapolis, Nov. 12.—The third day's session of the Farmers' National congress had two important features. One was an address by General Harrison and the other was the adoption of a memorial to congress.

General Harrison was in a happy mood, and when he arose to speak he was greeted enthusiastically. In part he said:

"I came here to make an acknowledgement of the compliment you have shown me by inviting me to appear before this congress. I suppose that politics is barred, as this is an agricultural meeting. I'm not an agriculturist, though born and reared on a farm My education was paid for by the proceeds of corn and hogs. It is a custom of the time for men of a partiular occupation to associate themselves together, to develope and cultivate mutual interests. Such organizations are to be encouraged, but we must not forget that lawyers, farmers and laborers all have interests and that no one class should try to get the better of the other classes. We are all rejoicing that you are getting a little more for your wheat and corn, though it is at the expense of us who have to pay a little more for the things we consume."

Then the General ventured a little piece out into political waters. "I have no patience with those people who are always fighting the air," he said. He advised men who believed that legislation is prejudicial to them to go about a fight in a systematic way, not "fighting the air." It was plain that the General was referring to a situation in the recent campaign. He advised that public sentiment be focused on whatever question of unusual import was brought before the people and that men go straight after what they want.

A Fashionable Fad.

New, York., November 12.—Jupiter Pluvius and his attendant ministers of rain and slush have no terrors for the fashionable throng who for a week every year view each other in the display of pomp and beauty and incidentally patronize that noble animal the horse. Consequently the attendance this afternoon at Madison Square Garden was the best since the show began, numbering 5,500 people.

At night, too, the constant stream that poured in and distributed itself through the boxes and reserved seats leaving the overflow to join the eddying circle on the floor, seemed never ending. In the tan barked arena three or four accidents, happily of a minor nature, and not attended by any ill effects beyond disturbed dignity, occured at regular intervals throughout the day.

The variety actress who was turned down yesterday was again on hand today. She had substituted divided skirts for the objectionable pink tights of last evening, but her white stallion was again equipped with a man's saddle and accordingly the ring committee refused to allow her to ride astride. This was her last appearance as she had only entered in two classes and after threatening dire penalties she departed, much to the relief of the directors.

COOKE—LONG.

A very pretty wedding ceremony was consummated at the home of W. H Long, at Jacksonville, on Wednesday evening, when the second daughter of the household, Miss Emma E., was married to Walter Cooke of Howard. The Rev. Jones, of the Presbyterian church officiated.

Promptly at half-past five o'clock the couple attended by Miss Margaret Long, a sister of the bride, entered the daintily decorated parlor of the Long homestead and were married. The bride was charmingly gowned in white silk, her maid wearing organdy of the same color.

After the ceremony a reception was held and a wedding supper served. The couple were then driven to Howard on a tour east. Upon their return they will live in Howard, where the groom is agent for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, and they will go to housekeeping in the property which Mr. Poulsen will vacate in a short time.

The National Flower.

The question of what flower shall be adopted as the floral emblem of the United States is interesting a large number of women throughout the country. A national organization has been formed called the The National Floral Emblem Society of America, and its object, as stated in the constitution, is for the purpose of giving every man, woman and child in the U. S. a chance to vote for the National Flower. The society is working energetical at present and its members hope to bring their plans to a focus by next summer, when they expect to celebrate the Fourth of July by holding the floral election upon that day.

The Fair Millions.

San Francisco, Nov. 16.—The struggle for possession of the millions left by the late Senator James G. Fair was terminated this morning when Dr. Marc Livingston, the executor named in the celebrated pencil will of which Mrs. Nettie Craven, the reputed wife of the deceased millionaire was custodian, withdrew her petition for the probate of that document. Dr. Livingston alleges that the will is distasteful to the Fair heirs, who control the funds of the estate, and the supporters of the pencil will are without the means to sustain their claims in court, the document might be defeated. That result would reflect on the legality of the deeds of the property from the late Senator to Mrs. Craven. On motion of the attorney of the Fair children, the will executed Sept. 21, 1894, in which no mention is made of Mrs. Craven was admitted to probate. The amount involved is about $20,000,000. Mrs. Craven will now contest her claim to the property for which she holds wills alleged to have been drawn in her favor by Fair at the time of their marriage.

Threw a Cartridge in the Chimney

Boston November 16.—One of the upper stories of the hotel Highland, No. 115 Dale street, Roxburg, an eight-story apartment house, was wrecked this morning. A dynamite cartridge was thrown down the chimney and exploded, wrecking the kitchen in the top suite, occupied by Henry T. Burrel and family. Two other cartridges were found on the roof, neither having exploded There were five persons in the kitchen at the time of the accident and all had narrow escapes of death. It is rumored that there has been trouble over the ownership of the building.

Many persons take a variety of remedies and try many novel procedures to reduce their weight. We do not refer to these. If you have been in fair health, with a normal amount of flesh, and yet have been losing weight of late, there is something wrong. If there is an inherited tendency to weak lungs; if your cold hangs on, or if you are weak, without appetite, losing color, and easily exhausted; this loss of flesh is the signal of distress. Weyler's Wanderings.

Havana, November 16.—No definite news regarding the movements of Gen. Weyler has been received. The latest reports state that he was penetrating the Rubi hills under a harassing fire from the insurgents, but since then nothing has been heard from him and there is considerable anxiety among the loyalites here. Rumors of all kinds are current, but none are trustworthy.

Official reports were received today giving accounts of skirmishes between the troops and rebels in all the provinces except Pinar del Rio.

The plan for a meeting of bankers and merchants to take part in the national loan did not amount to anything owing to lack of time. The popular subscriptions here to the loan amount to only $55,000. The gunboat Magallanes, which has arrived here, brings information that General Castellanos had arrived at Cascorro. He reported that he had eight encounters with the rebels, who were very active. Returning from Cascorro to San Miguel he had further encounters with the enemy, who were commanded by Garcia, Cebreco and other leaders. The rebels, who were numerous, sustained heavy losses. The Spanish colum fired in the various engagements 43 cannon shots and used over 100,000 cartridges. The troops lost 20 killed, and a major, a lieutenant and 13 privates wounded.

The rebels have destroyed the town of Guaimaro, in the eastern part of the province of Puerto Principe.

Do You Want to be a Martyr?

Probably not! But if you do, try and get the dyspepsia by unwise feeding. Then you'll suffer martyrdom with a vengeance! Some people are martyrs to this complaint from childhood to the grave, suffering from all its attending horrors of heartburn, wind and pain in the stomach. weary slumber and nightmare, capricious appetite, nausea, biliousness, leanness and sallowness. No necessity for all this. The complaint obstinate as it is, when the ordinary remedies are brought to bear upon it, invariably yield to the great stomachic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which restores tranquillity to the gastric region and nerves, regulates the liver and bowels both of which are disturbed by weakness of the stomach, and promotes appetite and an increase of flesh. That "tocsin of the soul," the dinner bell, when it peals upon the ear, suggests no premonition of dire qualms after a comfortable meal if you have tried a course of the Bitters, which also banishes biliousness rheumatism, nervousness, malaria and kidney trouble.

No Gold Bugs Wanted.

Kansas City, Nov. 16.—In an interview here to-day, Wm. J. Bryan said:

"The Democrats who worked with and supported the Republican party in the late campaign will be gladly welcomed again into the ranks of the Democratic party, but only as silver Democrats. The Democratic party is now a silver party. There cannot be two Democratic parties.

"The charge that grieved me most, and was unjust, was that I had deserted the Democratic party in 1892 and voted for General Weaver. Those who made the charge know we had fusion in Nebraska and I acted upon the recommendation of the Chairman of the National Democratic Committee. These men will find it very hard now to accuse me of not being a Democrat.

"I am not ready to make my future plans public. I do not intend to lose my residence in Lincoln. I will lecture some. I will engage in nothing that could invalidate my position as the head of the silver forces."

WORK OF NOBLE WOMEN

Members of The Women's Christian Temperance Union Meet.

THEY DEVISE WAYS AND MEANS

For The Rescue of the Fallen—A Telegram of Appreciation to Clara Barton—An Important Amendment Not Carried.

St. Louis, Mo., November 16.—The delegates to the twenty-third annual convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance union assembled in Schuyler memorial house at 8 o'clock this morning and attended devotional exercises, conducted by Mrs. Charlton Enholm, of New York. The convention re-assembled in the music hall at 9 o'clock and the proceedings began with prayer.

A number of suggestions for the advancement of the work of temperance crusading were received and referred to appropriate committees. The committee on financial plans recommended that the plan of securing funds pursued last year be continued. The recommendation was adopted and provides for the depositing of 40 per cent of the funds secured with the national treasurer.

The executive committee recommended to the convention that the national application committee shall consist of nine members, two of whom shall be chosen by the board of superintendents and three by the executive committee. The convention accepted the recommendation.

The committee also reported that the membership fees are not sufficient for the needs of the work, and plans to collect more money will be devised.

Mrs. Anna Sneed Cairns, president of Forest Park university, of St. Louis, donated a scholarship in her university for an Armenian student. A telegram of appreciation of her noble work in behalf of the Armenian sufferers was ordered forwarded to Miss Clara Barton.

The first animated debate of the convention began this morning when Mrs Mary F. Lovell, of Bryn Mawr, Pa., proposed an amendment to the constitution whereby the state superintendents shall be added to the executive committee.

The committee as now constituted is composed of the state presidents and he proposed constitutional amendment has been rejected at the last three or four conventions. Almost the entire morning session was occupied in the debate.

The vote resulted as follows: One hundred and fifty-nine for the amendment and 135 against it. As a two-thirds majority was needed to carry a constitutional amendment, the amendment was declared not carried.

Mrs. Lovell gave notice that at the next national convention either she or a representative would call up the amendment again. The morning session was closed with a memorial service for friends who had passed away since the last convention.

At the afternoon session Mrs. Sophie Grubb, of Missouri, superintendent of the work among foreigners, reported that it was progressing favorably, although influenced by the general depression in business. The seven national associates had done effective work.

Mrs. M. B. Carz, president of the Publishing association, said that the receipts were $125,377 and the expenditures $125,151. The receipts for 1896 were $14,462 less than in 1895, but the net gain was $516. The financial storm had been weathered by reducing expenses, the volume of business being smaller. Mrs. Carz also submitted a report about the temple. She had raised $141,398 of the $300,000 needed to buy the trust bonds and would try to secure the balance this year. The interest on the bonds had been paid.

A Baby Born Without Bones.

A boneless child is the latest curiosity discovered by Councilman Cannaro, at Warren, Pa., who is authority for the statement that a child whose name is Parks is composed of nothing but skin and muscle. The family is poor and the child will be taken in charge by the county commissioners.

And Both Slept Well.

A rich man died. They laid him down to rest
Upon a fair slope slanting towards the West,
And cast upon the silence of his tomb
A marble mausoleum's sacred gloom.
They hung within its tower, tall and white,
A chime of sweet toned bells; and every night,
Just as the red sun sank below the swell
Of that green hill, they tolled his solemn knell.

Another died. They buried him in haste
Within a barren field, a weedy waste.
Rank nettles locked their arms and thorns
were sown
Above his bed, unmarked by cross or stone,
One lived on many tongues; the other fell
From human memory; and both slept well!

WRECKED BY DYNAMITE

Probably Fatal Explosion Which Occurred Saturday Night.

Detroit, Mich., November 15—The house of Frank Konjo, a pole on the Michigan avenue road, a mile outside of the city limits, was wrecked by the explosion of two sticks of dynamite about 10:30 o'clock last night and three persons were seriously injured, two of them probably fatally. Those injured are:

Frank Conjo, body and legs terribly lacerated, will probably die.

Bob Ewers, both eyes blown out, skull fractured, probably fatally injured.

Josephine Konjo, daughter of Frank Conjo, badly cut and bruised.

Seven other persons who were sleeping in the house at the time the explosion occurred escaped injury.

The explosions evidently were the result of a deliberate plot to murder himself and family in settlement of an old feud. One of the charges of dynamite had been placed under Josephine's bedroom, and the other under that occupied by Konjo. Josephine and Ewers were sitting in Josephine's room when the first explosion occurred, the charge shooting straight up through the floor into Ewer's face, part of it striking the girl. Awakened by the noise of the explosion, Konjo jumped out of bed just in time to receive the full benefit of the second charge. Konjo and Ewers were taken to the Emergency hospital, frightfully lacarated and bruised, and the doctors have little hope of saving their lives.

The police are looking for a Pole named Rogolski, whom the Konjos charge with having committed the outrage.

—Mrs. Wm. McClelland, aged 75 years who resides with her son Charles McClelland on East Lamb St., is lying seriously ill, her advanced age makes her recovery extremely doubtful.

"Hello, Dick, here's the five I owe you," remarked the man with the fur collar on his overcoat, as he handed his astonished friend a crisp bill.

"Yes," stammered the other.

"Isn't that right? Didn't you lend me five three months ago?"

"Yes."

"Then, what's the matter?"

"To tell the truth, I didn't expect you'd pay me so soon."

"Oh, that's all right, you see I've been around paying my debts. I owed about $400 to forty people, and I may say that with the $5 which I just handed you I am now practically out of debt. With one exception, I owe no money to any one."

"You don't say?"

"Yes. It makes me feel like a new man. I have determined to turn over a new leaf."

"What's the matter? Did somebody die and leave you a fortune?"

"Oh, no. You see, I borrowed $500 from Lane yesterday, and now I have the satisfaction of feeling that I only owe one debt in the world."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Woman's Influence.

JANE CAMPBELL OF PHILADELPHIA.

I saw it mentioned in a newspaper, a Boston weekly, that a well known club of women in Philadelphia, that interests itself in municipal affairs, though without desire to take any active part in such, anxious to have women represented in the local school boards of Philadelphia, applied to the committees of both political parties in 14 wards of that city, asking that women be nominated for school directors on the regular political tickets. Here was evidently an unequaled opportunity for the exercise of the influence which it is currently reported that women especially good women, the sex that is only a "little lower than the angels", etc, can always wield when they care to exert it. One ward, the 8th, acceded to the request, the other 13 ignored it. So the measure of this attempt to exert this powerful weapon of influence was 1 to 14. This did not strike me as a very promising beginning so I turned to the election returns, hoping to find a little more encouragement in them. Upon examining the lists I found that in 16 wards in all women had endeavored to secure places on the local school boards of their respective wards.

The first I noticed was the 7th ward. Seven candidates for school directors were voted for, 4 of them being men, 3 women. The man having the highest number of votes received 3318; the woman having the highest, 603. So in the 7th ward woman's influence was as 1 to about 5½. Then I examined the returns in the 8th ward. There were 3 men and 3 women on the ticket. One of the woman received the highest number of votes 2092, so her "influence" or the "influence" of women in the 8th ward outranked that of even the men candidates, a truly gratifying result. Next to the 9th ward. 4 men and 2 women candidates. Highest number of votes received by a man, 979; by a woman, 86. "Influence" about 1 to 11. Then came the 22nd ward. Six candidates were here, 4 men and 2 women. Highest vote cast for a man, 5332; for woman, 1052. "Influence" still high for influence, although not high enough to elect 1 to 5. Now for the 3rd ward, undoubtedly the banner ward of woman's "influence." There were nine candidates, 7 were men and 2 were women. Highest number of votes cast for a man, 5136; for a woman, 57. "Influence" 1 to 90.

Of the 35 women candidate 1 was elected, not an excessively large proportion one thirty-fifth. Of the 80 men candidates in these 14 wards 55 were elected, almost three-fourths. The figures tell their own story.

According to the last census (1890) there are in Philadelphia 24, 720 more females than males.

I will merely remark in closing that for my part were I a candidate for school director in Philadelphia, I should, on the whole, prefer the certain assurance that 24, 720 votes could give the "influence" used with such wonderful effect in this last city school election.

R. Bruce Hutchison, a prominent young business man of Juniata, was arrested last night with a warrant by constable David Funk upon the sworn information of John R Fraser, a member of the borough council, upon the charge of arson. It is alleged that some time in October last he made an offer of $100 to J. Frank Bowden, now in the county jail at Hollidaysburg, and $100 to Frank Moore; also $25 to Robert Williams, colored, to set fire to and burn the new building of Pheasant & Wagner, merchants, of that suburban borough to Altoona city. The young man entered bail for his appearance at court.—Tyrone Herald.

Brutally Tortured by Burglars.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 18.—Three burglars broke into the house occupied by 72-year-old John Mirka, a miser. Mirka lives alone, and has been credited with having large sums of money secreted in his house. Upon his refusal to tell the burglars where his money was hidden he was bound, gagged and a lamp flame applied to his feet until the flesh was literally cooked. The old man writhed in agony, but protested he had no money. The burglars then applied the flame to the suffering man's hands, and then to his body, until he finally sank into unconsciousness, in which condition he was found by neighbors.

"The Schomburgk Line Has Vanished."

LONDON, Nov. 16.—An editorial in The Times expresses confidence that the prudence and justice of the United States will prevent any reckless or dangerous application of the new Monroe doctrine. The Chronicle says: "The Schomburgk line has utterly vanished. It is merely absurd to pretend that Lord Salisbury has not retired. England's recognition of the Monroe doctrine will make it very difficult for any other power to refuse to recognize it. It is safe to say that the United States has undertaken responsibilities that may press upon them very heavily some day."

Spring Mills Jottings.

We have now 12 or 15 applicants for the appointment of postmaster of our village and more are reported as coming from the woods. There seems to be a regular scramble for it. Of course, all will be disappointed and vexed save one, and no doubt he'll be astonished, if not disappointed, because he received it. There is a strong opposition to having the office continued in a general store, but it can hardly be avoided, as we have no building in the village suitable for a post-office. There is also a feeble effort being made to have the office located on what is called the "hill"—an elevation southeast of the town proper, with a population fully equal, but I have grave doubts about its accomplishment, as there is hardly sufficient force in the effort to secure it.

The last boat for "salt river" left our landing on Penns creek last week. The scow was crowded with the great "unwashed." They all seemed in good humor and take their defeat philosophically.

Nearly all the corn in this neighborhood is housed and waiting for advanced prices. They may come.

C. C Bartges, of the Spring Mills printing house, has just received over a dozen fonts of type. Mr. B. has been quite busy of late; he is now negotiating for a new large-sized press.

Many of our gardens are decorated (?) with from three to a half dozen hillocks, resembling the huge ant hills of South America, under which are stored apples, cabbage, etc., to preserve them during the long winter months. In order to make the preservation doubly sure, they must be "inearthed" in a certain "sign" and when the moon is on her back, i. e., dark, and some other "spook" incantations attended to, otherwise the fruit, vegetables, etc., will decay. Our great-grandmothers believed in much of this kind of nonsense and the custom is still continued by a few.

They say the planets are now exactly in the same position they were 27 years before the deluge, consequently look out for signs, wonders, electrical displays, "horse shoe sights," and the mischief knows what else. Who kept the record of this event? Did Mr. Noah, or did one of the elephants in the ark keep it in his "trunk?"

Commercial agents report business improving since the election, and everybody only hopes it will be like the stories in some of our magazines—to be continued. They tell me boots and shoes have advanced over 20 per cent. within the last 30 days, and other goods have an upward tendency. All right, let us have a rising market once, just for fun; it has been the other way long enough.

C. A. Moyer, one of our merchants, some time ago concluded to quit business, but has since reconsidered the matter and will continue. He is now in the city purchasing a full stock.

C. P. Long the enterprising merchant of our village, is putting the finishing touches on his large brick residence, located on the new thoroughfare from the hill to the R. R. station. The dwelling presents a very handsome appearance from any direction.

It is said the turkeys of Penns Valley are playing "sick." Has the near approach of Thanksgiving day anything to do with it?

THANKSGIVING DAY.

Governor Hastings Issues His Proclamation Naming November 26.

Thankful to Almighty God for his manifold blessings vouchsafed to our country, our Commonwealth and our people, in perpetuation of the sacred customs established by our fathers, recognizing the Christian religion as the corner stone of our free institutions, and in pursuance of the proclamation of the President of the United States, designating one day to be observed as a day of thanksgiving and prayer throughout the land;

Now, therefore, I, Daniel Hastings, governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, do recognize Thursday, the 26th day of November of the present year, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer.

In observance of that day, let all labor and business be suspended and in our accustomed places of worship and around hearth-stone and fireside let us assemble our loved ones and offer up our paeans of praise and gratitude to our Heavenly Father for the peace and prosperity with which he has so blessed our nation: for staying pestilence and averting war; for his goodness and mercy in sparing our lives and preserving our health and happiness.

Let us show our gratitude for the blessings we have received at his hands by generously remembering the poor and unfortunate, and administering to the sick and afflicted round and about us; and let us, as benefiting a christian people, in reverential recognition of our dependency upon Divine Providence earnestly invoke for the future peace, prosperity, happiness and general welfare of our beloved land, the favor, care and guidance of God, our creator.

Given under my hand and the great seal of the State at the city of Harrisburg this 14th day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninty six and of the Commonwealth the one hundred and twenty first.

By the Governor,

DANIEL H. HASTINGS.

Secretary of Commonwealth.

There are many people who would be glad to abandon the habit of drinking coffee if they could only find some substitute for it. That substitute is Grain-O, made from pure grains and, in the opinion of those who have given it a thorough trial, a beverage in every way preferable to coffee. Grain-O is not a stimulant, it is something better It is cheering, nutritious and strengthening. In other words it is a food-drink, as coffee is not. It is acceptable to the most delicate stomach, and agrees even with confirmed dyspeptics. Un like coffee Grain-O produces no nervous action. It never interferes with sleep. The Coinage of Silver.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The records of the treasury department show that from Feb. 1, 1896, to Nov. 1 there were coined at the mints of the United States 16,262,922 standard silver dollars from the balance of silver bullion on hand purchased under the act of July 14, 1890. The seigniorage upon this amount was $5,051,430, which has been turned into the treasury. The balance of the silver bullion purchased under the act of 1890 on hand, Nov. 1, 1896, was 125,061,263 fine ounces, which cost the government $112,865,625. The coinage value of this amount is $151,693,000.

Increased Sugar Production.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—This year's raw sugar supply of the world surpasses that of 1895, notwithstanding the enormous Cuban deficit, according to official statistics received at the department of state from Consul General Karel at St. Petersburg. Mr. Karel reports that the Russian wheat and rye shortage will be more than made up by the increased beet sugar production, and adds that this increase is common to other European countries.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Nov 16, 1896.

Chairman Hanna has written a Washington friend virtually confirming the rumor that the Republican National Committee would shortly open permanent headquarters in Washington, from which the educational fight against the free silver fallacy, which is to go right along until the truth has been argued into the heads of all misguided people, shall be directed This move would have been generally commended anyway, but the announcement that the Silver committee, the Populist committee, and the Democratic committee intended to maintain permanent Washington headquarters and to keep up the distribution of silver literature, made it almost necessary. The silver sentiment would not have been half so extensive if its opponents had met argument with argument, instead of wasting time laughing at the silver men sending out campaign literature several years ahead of the campaign and doing nothing themselves. Mr. Hanna knows how hard it was to undo in a few weeks the work that the silver men had been doing for several years; hence he has from the day the campaign closed favored a continuation of the education of the voters on the silver question.

There is enough work on the bills already passed by the House to keep the Senate busy until the close of the last session of the Fifty fourth Congress, but how many of those bills the Senate will act upon, or even devote any time to, is more than any man can really say. Among the important bills passed by the House and left unacted upon by the Senate are the Dingley Emergency Revenue bill, the bill to protect the gold reserve and provide for temporary deficiencies in revenue, the bill to amend the customs administrative law, the Bankruptcy bill, the Immigration bill and the Pension bill. Doubtless other bills would have been acted upon by the House had not the disposition of the Senate to do nothing been so apparent. How much of that disposition remains will not be certain until after Congress meets, notwithstanding the opinions pro and con which some of the Senators have recently made public. It will be noticed that men like Senator Morrill of Vt., "The Father of the Senate," are not attempting to say what the Senate will do. Mr. Morrill is in Washington for the winter, but he is not making any prophesies.

Mr. Cleveland's administration always seems to have a war scare ready to spring on the public. Having just gotten rid of the principal cause of friction with England by negotiating a treaty providing for the submission of the Venezuelan Boundary dispute with England to arbitration, the Spanish war scare is trotted out in a new dress. While no official statement has been made to that effect, friends of the administration say that it has trustworthy information that Spain intends to force a war with this country if her present campaign against the Cuban revolutionists fail, and that the administration is accordingly preparing to fight. If Spain really had any such intention it would be wise to prepare for war, and in any event it will do no harm. But it isn't at all likely that Spain has any such intention. There has been enough to prove to the world that the men, or women, who are running the government of Spain during the minority of the king are not models of wisdom, but that is no reason why they should be foolish enough to provoke a war with the United States. It may be that some Spaniards are ignorant enough to believe that a one-horse nation, like Spain, is in the same fighting class with the United States, but it is impossible to believe that men of sufficient education and intelligence to be entrusted with official positions under the Spanish government, share such absurd belief. At any rate, there is no reason for anybody to lose any sleep over the probabilities of a war with Spain. If the Dons haven't any better sense than to get up a rumpus with us they will find that the thrashing they will receive will be too sudden and thorough to be dignified by the name of war.

Mr. Cleveland has decided to give Secretary Herbert a place on the Bench, and he would like to do as much for Secretary Carlisle and Postmaster General Wilson, but he has grave doubts as to whether the Senate will sanction the nomination of either of these men, owing to the prejudice of the silver senators against them and him. Republican Senators will not be likely to over exert themselves in helping him, as they will probably prefer to have all vacancies filled by President McKinley.

When one considers that only four years ago the Democratic party won a presidential election and obtained control of both branches of Congress its present condition is pitiable indeed. Without a head, without an organization, and without even a principle around which to rally the disorganized fragments of a once powerful political organization, it furnishes a warning to all political parties of the punishment which the people administer to incapacity.

Scrofula Swelling

"In the spring of 1890 we first noticed a lump coming on the right side of our six-year-old boy's neck. We consulted our physician. He gave no name for the swelling, but told us to put on a blister. One person told us to use one thing and another another, but nothing proved of any avail. In May, 1891, I purchased a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla and the child began taking it. About the middle of July the swelling broke and proved to be scrofula. We gave our son three bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and when he had taken this medicine the sore was healed, and the disease has been entirely driven from the system." W. C. KREAMER, Milesburg, Pa.

A tired stomach is much like a sprained ankle. If you suffer from any of the symptons of dyspepsia your stomach is tired. It needs a crutch. We must relieve it of all work for a time, or until is is restored to its natural strength. To do this successfully, we must use a food which is already digested outside of the body, and which will aid the digestion of other foods that may be taken with it. Such a product is the Shaker Digestive Cordial.

The Shakers have utilized the digestive principles present in plants for the manufacture of this article, and success has been truly phenomenal. You can try it the nominal sum of 10 cents, as sample bottles are sold by all druggists at this price.

Laxol is the best medicine for children. Doctors recommend it in place of Castor Oil.

INVESTIGATE THIS.

And It is in Bellefonte, Not in San-Francisco. Any Citizen Can Verify This.

"Honesty is the best policy." That old adage has always been a characteristic of an Allegheny street grocery man. Not only has honesty been the mainstay of the claims made for the old Quaker remedy but it is the bulwark of the testimonials published in its behalf when you know that a citizen, perhaps a neighbor prefaces his statement with a tribute like that which follows. The testimony is not only interesting, remarkably strong, but it carries with it an irresistable influence that sweeps away every vistage of increduality. What do our readers think of this? "I have so much confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills that after I got my first box at Green's Pharmacy I went and bought six more." What more can the greatest scoffer at proprietary medicine want. Read the rest of his testimony. "Besides running this grocery I have looked after three estates. This constant strain has told on me and as time passes by I find that my health is not what it was at one time. I am troubled with kidney complaint. It shows itself in backache, headache and scanty yet frequent urination. While I am not laid up I suffer a great deal. Now I do not claim that Doan's Kidney Pills have cured me—for they have not—but I received so much benefit from one box I determined to continue their use. I believe from the progress made that I will eventually eradicate every vistage of trouble, for my appetite has improved and I can rest comfortably at night."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo. New York, sole agents for the United States.

Irishmen of German Descent.

To speak of an Irishman of German descent seems strangely anomalous, but yet such is Bishop Thomas Donacum, of Omaha, and there are many more of like origin in this country. They are the descends of the Palantine Germans who settled to the number of 3,800 in County Limerick about 190 years ago. How they came there is an interesting bit of history. In the year 1709 a great many Germans decided to emigrate to America in consequence of the distress caused by the French war. About 100 were in London waiting for ships, when England decided to send no more emigrants to the colonies. Having no means of returning to their native land, they were sent to Ireland, where they made considerable progress as skillful farmers and mechanics. Up to the year 1840 the Palantines of Limerick were still to be recognized as different from the other people in Ireland. Some of the older members still retained the language, custom and religion of their native country, but the younger ones were intermingling with Irish neighbors. At the present time the German language is extinct, but the people can easily recognized by their dark complexions, eyes and hair and the exercise of religious services peculiar to their own community.

MR. BRYAN'S LECTURE TOUR.

His Salary Will Exceed That Received by the President.

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 18.—It has been definitely arranged that William J. Bryan is to take the lecture platform, and his first address will be delivered at Atlanta, Ga., early in December. His route, as far as it has been arranged, will be, after leaving Atlanta, Jacksonville, Savannah, Charleston, Augusta, Birmingham and New Orleans. After leaving the latter city Mr. Bryan will go through Texas, then on to California and Oregon, and will not reach the cities of the east before the latter part of February, 1897.

The men behind the enterprise is V. E. McBee, of Norfolk, Va., the superintendent of the Seaboard Air line. Mr. Bryan has signed contracts for a series of lectures under the management of Alexander Comstock, who is the representative associate of Mr. McBee in the enterprise. The terms of the agreement from a financial standpoint have not been made public, but it is reliably understood that the remuneration which Mr. Bryan is to receive is to exceed the salary he would have received as president of the United States in the event of his election to that office.

Arrangements are already under way to have the delivery of Mr. Bryan's first lecture in Atlanta made the occasion of a great demonstration, which will be in the nature of a monster reception. The lectures to be delivered by Mr. Bryan will be non-partisan in their character, and will for the most part be upon governmental and social topics, as it is expressly stipulated in the contract that the tour shall have no political aspect or coloring.

Edison Experiments with Blind Men.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Thomas E. Edison has verified the experiments reported to have been made in San Francisco, in which, by means of the cathode ray, a blind boy had been enabled to distinguish light. Edison experimented Monday night on two subjects, both blind, from Newark, N. J. Many tubes were tried, each with increased strength, and finally the subjects were enabled to distinguish flashes. One of the men was able after a time to say when the light was turned on and off. It is Edison's intention to continue experimenting in this line until much more satisfactory results are arrived at, which he confidently predicts will be soon.

Queer Ways of Telling Time.

One of our boys who doesn't own a watch writes about how he tells the time of day. He works in a wheat elevator in an Iowa town. A big window almost fills one side of his little office. Into a corner of the window creeps the sunlight early in the morning and shines in all day long and creeps out of the corner in the evening. On the floor where the edge of the shadow from the window sash falls just at noon our boy has placed a long chalk mark and a little futher away there is another chalk mark for one o'clock and so on up to six. The forenoon is similarly divided on the floor. Each day by simply looking at the edge of the sun's light he can tell what time it is. Once in two weeks he changes all these marks because the shadows change as the sun gets higher in the spring or lower in the fall.

This clever device—any of you may use it—suggests the way that the natives of Liberia in Africa, who have no locks, tell the time. They take the kernels from the nuts of the candle tree and wash and string them on the rib of a palm leaf. The first or top kernel is then lighted. All of the kernels are of the same size and substance, and each will burn a certain number of minutes and then set fire to the one next below. The natives tie pieces of black cloth at regular intervals along the string to mark the divisions of time. Among the natives of Singar, in the Malay archipelago, another peculiar device is used. Two bottles are placed neck and neck, and sand is put in one of them, which pours itself into the other every half hour, when the bottles are reversed.—Chicago Record.

The Northern Conference of the Lutheran Synod of Central Pennsylvania opened at Salona on Tuesday afternoon. The president, Rev. W. H. Schock of New Berlin, preached the opening sermon. Conference continues in session two days.

THREE LESSONS.

There are three lessons I would write—
Three words as with a burning pen,
In tracings of eternal light
Upon the hearts of men.

Have Hope. Through clouds environ now,
And gladness hides her face in scorn,
Put thou the shadow from thy brow—
No night but hath its morn.

Have Faith. Where'er thy bark is driven—
The calm's disport, the tempest's mirth—
Know this.—God rules the host of Heaven,
The inhabitants of earth.

Have love. Not love alone for one,
But man as man thy brother call,
And scatter, like the circling sun,
Thy charities on all.

Thus grave these lessons on thy soul—
Faith, Hope and Love—and thou shalt find
Strength with life's surgest roll,
Light when thou else were blind.

She Sues for Damages.

Pittsburg Nov. 18.—Mrs. Ida Eckles, of Homestead, to-day entered a suit for $20,000 damages against Dr. D. H. Kearns of that place. She alleges in her statement that on March 2, 1896, she called at the doctor's office on professional business, and he attempted to assault her, and that only a furious struggle preserved her honor. She states she is a respectable married woman, and has been so injured in feelings and reputation that the sum sued for will be necessary to recompense her. Mrs. Eckles is the daughter-in-law of the proprietor of the Commercial Hotel in Homestead. She married his son in Chicago. Last Tuesday she entered a libel suit, claiming $10,000 damages against the Messenger of Homestead for printing a story that she had eloped with a single man.

NEW YORK FASHIONS.

New Jackets; "Imperial" Collars; Velvet Capes; Furs; Collarettes; Neck Boas; "Marie Antoinette" Muffs, Fur Trimmings; Trimmed Skirts.

The front and back of winter jackets are not always similar; as for example the "Watteau" plait appears with a fight fronts, or a plain loose back may have a closely fitting front, or double breasted front fastened with from one to six large buttons, are appropriate to any style of back. Jacket skirts are of medium length, and sleeves are a larger edition of dress sleeves—close below the elbow with a puff at the top. Braiding is much in favor, or fur collars with handsome cloth are always desirable. Slashed jacket collars are new, and another collar very broad at the fronts, is called the "Imperial," and for out-door garments overshadows all others at present. Black velvet jackets are shaped almost exactly like cloth jackets, but the lavish use of fur or jet trimmings materially enhance their cost. Velvet capes are fitted at the back or have the "Watteau" plait, and fur collarettes, sometimes with lace below, or jet passementerie bands placed over the shoulders and reaching to the lower edge are a favorite style.

are now an all-absorbing topic, and styles originated or introduced by C. C. Shayne, are subjects of special interest to the elite of the city, or connoisseurs in such matters. Russian sable, seal, Hudson Bay otter, mink, or Persian lamb, hold a formost position, and selection becomes simply an exercise of individual taste. A seal coat with an imperial collar, with or without sable tails, varying from twenty-four to thirty inches in length, fills so many requirements that the demand for it remains standard, and the same shape is repeated in Hudson Bay otter or Persian lamb. A tight-fitting Persian lamb coat with imperial collar of Grebe, Hudson Bay otter or Russian sable, is well adapted to the display of a slender figure, and is additionally handsome in seal or Hudson Bay otter.

THE NEWEST MATERIAL

for winter capes is Grebe, the skin of a large bird, showing beautiful natural gray stripes, and a cape having a yoke of seal or otter, with little animal heads around it, with the lower part and collar of Grebe, is the leading cape of the season. A Persian lamb yoke cape with chinchilla collar, brings out the beauties of both furs to great advantage, or if desired, a Grebe or sable collar may be substituted. Collars or collarettes as they are often called, supply the place of the genuine cape, costing much less, yet very jaunty and handsome.

AS AN ILLUSTRATION

comes the "Vienna" collar of Persian lamb, made very full, with imperial collar, and trimmed with Fisher tails and heads. The "Revere" collar is pointed at the front, slashed on the shoulders and ornamented with six tails at the front. The "Star" collar is pointed on the shoulder, having a cluster of tails and an animal head on the points, and the "Reed" collar has eighteen tails at the front divided into three rows. Black or colored cloth capes, with imperial collar and front trimmed with Alaska sable and lined with Siberian squirrel, are the best possible substitutes for a fur cape, a twenty inch length being $25.00 and longer ones at proportionate price. Neck boas, finished with tails are as fashionable as ever, and of course, price depends upon the number of tails. The "Marie Antoinette" muff is the leading style—very large, with flaring ends showing gay brocaded silk linings, and a pocket-book may be firmly attached to the inner side if desired; a wonderful convenience in shopping. Chinchilla, ermine or mandarin are favorites for evening, the first-named however cannot be out of place. Inch wide trimmings of mink tail, ordinary mink, Persian lamb, stone-marten or chinchilla are in enormous demand, as fur is employed with almost every material this season; even as cross-bands on a white chiffon front.

TRIMMED SKIRTS

are now a certainty, and braid, ribbon velvet, applique borders, fur bands either headed by passementerie or plain, divide popular favor. A wide embossed velvet band may be placed near the waist, a second about half-way up, and a third at the lower edge of the skirt. Where the material has a large figure, a foot ruffle only is used, and on evening dresses, chiffon frills bound with satin, or accordion-plaited, are soft and pretty. Ball dresses range from plain velvet to caiffon or gauze over satin; necks round and low, and sleeves very short. Artificial flowers are used in profusion, wreaths around the neck and sleeves, with large clusters of roses anywhere that fancy may dictate.

Special Terms of Court.

The special week of court convened Monday morning with Judges Love and Faulkner on the bench. A large number of motions and petitions in both the Orphans' Court and Court of Common Pleas were presented and orders made. The presenting of petitions occupied most of the morning session. The list of jurors was called, when thirty answered to their names. The trial list was called. Nineteen cases are on the list to be disposed of. One was settled, two continued and the balance marked for trial. Before adjourning a verdict was taken in the case of J. H. Orvis' executors vs. Moses Thompson's executors for $1,476.20.

Curwensville Man Injured.

At Curwensville Thursday morning, George Shaffer while at work in Allen Bros,' tannery was badly injured by being caught in the line shifting. After being wound around several times he succeeded in bracing himself against a post and freeing himself. All his clothing was torn off except one sleeve. He is 22 years old, and is the only support of his widowed mother. It is believed that he will recover.

—A game of foot ball will be played at Hecla Park next Saturday afternoon between the Potts College and Academy teams.

Confidence in the Business Outlook.

The result of the recent election has certainly established confidence throughout the business world, and has turned the tide from depression and hard times, to the road on which we are now traveling to prosperity. We have waited a long time for this change, and it will still be a long time before we reach that prosperity which was taken from us by the result of the election four years ago. Notwithstanding the prosperity which we enjoyed, the politicians now in power, clamored for a change, which led too many people to follow; who were deluded into voting for a change which has proven to be the greatest mistake in the policy of our government, since the close of the war. Even now, the Bryanite portion of the party, which brought about this state of affairs, are now trying to scorch the wheels of progress, as well as to chill the ardor of those who are willing to join in the forward movement, and do the best they can to bring about the employment of men who are now idle and seeking for something to do. The starting of the glass works in our town is a fixed fact, and it will not be long before twenty-five to thirty men and boys are employed. Our people have been very liberal in contributing money to encourage the men who have decided to put fire and smoke into the plant and brighten up the future prospects of the old factory that has been so many years standing in idleness and darkness. We have many idle men to provide for; especially, young men, who seek employment, There are many young men in town, who are devising ways and means to get money, by honest means if they can, failing in which they resort to dishonest means as they must have money. They are willing to work for reasonable compensation, yes some of them for less than reasonable compensation for the purpose of earning an honest living. That there is ample capital in our midst to start small plants, no one will dispute. Heretofore, the enterprising people of our town have started large plants—too large for this community, In other words they commenced at the top and built downward instead of beginning at the bottom and building upwards, which is conclusive evidence that if we ever expect to be benefited by the employment of people, now idle in this vicinity, we must commence with small plants and build up. We need a variety of manufacturing industries, which will not only employ men and boys but women and girls also. When we can employ these idle people, our town will prosper as it has never prospered before. We will consume large quantities of farmers produce which is so greatly needed by the farmers in the vicinity of Bellefonte. The town cannot do without the country and and the farmers cannot do without the patronage of our town. The politicians have created a prejudice among farmers, that the business men are trying to gain all the advantages, which is as base as it is false. One interest depends upon the other, and when one interest fails to prosper, it cripples the whole. The interests of the country are knit together, and are very much like a wagon wheel. So long as every spoke in, the wheel is good, the wheel will carry its load with safety. When one spoke shall have been broken out, the wheel grows weaker until it finally succumbs and gives out. So it is with the interest of the country; one depends on the other, which makes it necessary for every man to do his part in accordance with his obligations.

GUISER—HAINES

John William Guiser of Bellefonte was united in marrriage last Thursday night to Miss Flora Alta Haines of Clearfield. The ceremony took place in the parlor of the Central Hotel at Tyrone and was conducted by Rev. Horace Lincoln Jacobs, pastor of the first M. E. church of that city.

Mr. Guiser is an industrious steadygoing young man, employed as a clerk in the Dry Goods Store of Joseph Brothers and Co. The fair bride is a step-daughter of Daniel Lebkicher formerly of this place. The DAILY NEWS joins with their many friends in wishing them much happiness in their newly married life.

Li Gives An Order.

Braddock, Pa., Nov. 16—Li Hung Chang has sent Andrew Carnegie an order for ten thousand tons of steel rails. When the Edgar Thompson plant resumed operations this morning it started to roll these rails. The company also received a big order from Japan. It is for five thousand tons of T rails, which are to be used in level country districts for light traffic. Horses will draw the cars. The rails will be laid flat on the ground, being held together merely by clamps. The order when filled will be shipped by water from New York. These rails are not half the weight of a standard railroad rail.

Li Hung Chang's order will go by water also, on a vessel leaving New York, saving exorbitant frieght rates across the American continent. It is said that the freight rates to the Pacific would be more than the cost of the order and for this reason they are being sent around from New York.

—We are glad to note that Oliver Whitmer, the young man who sustained serious injuries recently by falling from a trestle at Morris' lime kilns, has so far recovered as to be able to walk about the house.

EASY FOR PENNSYS.

They Defeat the State College Team by 27 to 0 in a very Lively Contest—Lots of Subs Tried.

Philadelphia, Nov. 14—The Quakers met the State College eleven at Franklin field, and rolled up 27. From the start the Red and Blue rushed the ball down the field and made gains whenever they felt like it. When the first half ended Philadelphia had run up a score of 23.

Pennsylvania put in several of their substitutes in the second half. They appeared to be somewhat strange during the early part of the half, and the visitors kept the ball in Pennsy's territory. The home team then took a brace and forced the ball down the field by short rushes and over the line for a touchdown. Jackson missed the goal.

Coach Woodruff, recognizing the necessity of having his best team out for Harvard, took no chance to-day, and had out his full team. Weeks was given another trial at quarterback, and his work proved satisfactory. Hedges played in the place of Boyle, who has been on the sick list for the past ten days. Much interest was evinced in the game on account of it being the first in which the Quakers tried their new code of signals, which, from all appearances, worked smoothly. The teams lined up as follows:

The Comet Season.

We are now nearing the great metoric orbid, and very soon there will appear in the heavens a vast number of comets or shooting stars. Astronomers the world over are preparing to witness the display, which will be at its height about the middle of November.

On its present journey the earth will only meet the advance guard of the stream of meteors that in its revolution about the sun pours itself across the November section of our orbid, but as the stream of meteors is about eight years long, that is, eight years being required for the stream to pass a given point, we shall meet it again in November, 1897, and the next November, and the next, when we are due to pass through its most dense portion which is almost 100,000 miles in thickness. Then for several years its number will grow less, until the last straggler has passed, when it will continue to sweep on its course and return to us again after a third of a century has elapsed. As far back as there are any records this stream of meteors has regularly appeared every thirty three and a quarter years, and each time has been visible from the earth eight Novembers running.

Kisses to Keep Boys Indoors.

Renova, Pa., November 16.—There are six young ladies in this town who are bound not to let leap year pass without doing something good for the opposite sex. They have organized the Edelweisse Social Club, the purposes of which are to furnish entertainment for invited young men. They have engaged a club room and are arranging it in a delightful manner. Just what the initiatory services will consist of the young ladies will not say, but one of the girls has admitted that a kiss and a hug shall be the pass work for all male members.

The eight young women who are the prime movers in the novel club declare that their object is to get the young men off the street corners during the winter; and, inasmuch as the club girls are all pretty and fetching, their object will doubtless be attained.

Love-making will not be allowed, under penalty of a fine. The girls will darn stockings and knit mittens for the boys, but the latter, in order to be available for membership, must refrain from smoking chewing and drinking.

—"Proposed Improvement of the White House" will be the subject of a paper in the next number of Harper's Weekly. Prominent architects will show, with the aid of carefully prepared drawings, how the present building may be enlarged so as to afford sufficient room for the President's family, for the transaction of official business, and for official receptions and entertainments. The same number of the Weekly will contain a review of the Horse Show, by Caspar Whitney, with a double page illustration by W. T. Smedley.

The Newton Hamilton Watchman says: Co. J. K. Rhoades sold his killdeer farm back of the campground this week containing 115 acres to Henry Smelker and Price, of Mount Union, for $500.00. The new owners will clear off the ground and plant it in all kinds of fruit. We wish them success.

WEYLER SAID TO BE DEFEATED

Although This Government Sympathizes With Cuba, It Must Observe Its International Obligations—But it is Ready to Meet Any warlike Emergency—A Very Different Version of the Fighting.

Washington, Nov. 13.—To a Senator who called upon him to-day to inquire in respect to the rumors of coming war with Spain over Cuban affairs, President Cleveland replied that the position of this government was stated in his last annual messag to Congress—one of traditional sympathy with a people struggling for autonomy and freedom; but nevertheless this government felt its plain duty to honestly fulfill every international obligation. The President further said that every precaution had been taken so that if occasion should arise in Cuba, the United States could assert itself with force, but he did not think that occasion would arise.

Secretary Lamont was more outspoken and expressed his individual opinion that some authoritative statement should be made to put an end to these disturbing and unjustified rumors of war.

Senor de Lome, Spanish minister, received the following cablegram today from Duke de Tetuan, Spanish minister of foreign affairs, dated Madrid, yesterday:

"The cablegrams from New York and Washington, published in London referring to supposed notes of Mr. Taylor and the Spanish government are entirely false. There is not the slightest foundation for such rumors, which are undoubtedly of filibustering origin."

Madrid, Nov. 13.—In an interview Premier Canovas del Castillo said that there had been serious reverses in Cuba, but that these ought not to discourage the national spirit. Within the present month he said the government was sending such reinforcements to Cuba and the Philippine Islands as should be able to put an end to the wars in both countries in a short time. Until the country objected to the sacrifices, he declared the goverment would never desist in their prosecution of the wars in Cuba and the Philippine Islands.

New York, Nov. 13.—An entirely different face is put upon the recent battle in the Rubi hills of Cuba from that given by Gen. Weyler by the Sun's special from Key West. According to this version Weyler marched into the interior with 25,000 men and took the field as commander in chief of the combined forces under Generals Arolas, Nunos and Echague. An attack was made on the camp of Maceo, who was strongly fortified in the hills of Pinar del Rio. Gen. Echague attacked Macoe on the right and Gen. Melguizo attacked the stronghold from the left. Gen. Maceo had 500 sharpshooters who singled out the Spanish generals, Echague and Melguizo, and shot them down. Gen. Weyler, it is reported, was slightly wounded in the leg. This battle lasted several hours and heavy losses are reported on both sides. Maceo succeeded in routing Weyler and his troops. The loss of the two Spanish generals had the desired effect, and they made a hasty retreat.

The result of this battle caused great excitement in Havana and strong protests have been forwarded to the home government against the retention of Gen. Weyler as Captain General of Cuba by some of the Spanish citizens of the island.

Havana, Nov. 13.—Since General Weyler's engagement with the rebels at Rubi heights there has been no fighting reported. Great anxiety prevails, and news from the front is eagerly awaited, as it is felt that upon the success of Gen. Weyler's campaign vast results depend. Unofficial advices show that General Weyler is again on the march, and it is believed that his force is now temporarily encamped in the Brrje hills.

A delegation of colonels of the Havana volunteers have called upon he Lieutenant Governor and offered to furnish volunteers for employment in Gen. Weyler's campaign. Celedonio Saez, a prisoner of war, will be shot to-morrow in the Cabanas tortress.

Some Uses for the Remnant.

One realizes more and more how many hundreds of women there are who never can find use for the remnant. unless it be the wrong one, in which case it is a possession of no use.

But then there are so many women in the world, who always put a thing to its wrong use, who seem to take a positive pleasure in misplacing the goods the gods have sent. Do we not all know these women, who having a Greek contour, yet persist in dressing their hair a la mode Japanesque; the women with the proportions of Juno who hanker unceasingly after the attractions of the stiff fronted shirt, or the slim little fairylike creatures whose sole idea of a costume is a black brocade, trimmed with jet? It was ever thus: the inappropriate has charms for the soulless.

If only the soulless women were bodyless too, there would be fewer mistakes in costume than now.

But what is the use of these sage reflections on the doings and misdoings of womankind, when it is one's solemn duty, to say nothing of one's earnest pleasure, to speak of the possible uses of the bargains gathered at the sales that spread like an epidemic from north to south, and from east to west, in the metropolis?

The most useful remnant is one of brocade or silk or satin, measuring from 8 to 12 yards. This can be utilized either for the skirt, the back of a tea gown, or a petticoat. Five yards, as a matter of fact, may be used for a petticoat, for it is easy enough in these days to elaborately frill it with chiffon, mounted over firmer flounces of taffeta. A capital effect has been gained quite recently by using a remnant of shot silk for a sleeveless coat. It was in blue and green, made rather short, in a fashion that would suit alike the slim or the stout figure.

Wide plaits fell gracefully over each shoulder, and around the armholes were frills of the silk to take the place of sleeves.—Chicago Tribune.

Big Time at Pine Grove.

There was a large and enthusiastic meeting held at Pine Grove last night in honor of the election of McKinley and Hobart.

There was a large torchlight parade in which delegations from Scotia, State College, Bailyville, Pennsylvania Furnace and other places took part. It was a very creditable affair. Ex-Post-master Samuel Dunlap, a life long Democrar carried a banner in the parade between two Republicans, to pay an election bet. Mounted men, fantastiets and fire works added to the excitement.

After the parade short addresses were made by Clement Dale Esq and S. B. Miller both of Bellefonte.

Thanks are due the families of J. G. Heberling and Geo. H. Woods for a very nice lunch served to the Bellefonte delegation just before starting for home.

Methodists Still Discussing.

Detroit, Mich., November 12.—Apportionment of the yearly appropriations occupied the sessions of the General Missionary committee of the Methodist Episcopal church to-day. An appropriation of $30,000 was made for salaries of secretaries and missionary purposes. This is an increase of $4,000 over last year, an additional bishop and secretary being provided for. The appropriation for office was cut down from 13,000 to $10,000. This left a balance of $981,000 for missionary work, and 45 per cent, was appropriated for home and 55 per cent for foreign missions, the same percentage as last year. A cut of 4 per cent on the apportionment of last year for foreign missions was made. China was first taken up and $25,000 was appropriated for Foo Chow mission, $35,000 for Central China, $40,000 for North China, and $12,500 for West China, the latter an increase.

To-night there was a platform meeting at the Central Methodist Episcopal church.

The Bellefonte Central railroad, which is completed to within one mile of Pine Grove Mills is rapidly being pushed into the town. A large number of men and teams are now employed in grading that part of the road, which will be finished in a short time, and then the ties and iron will be laid. It is a part of the county that appreciates an enterprise of that kind as the road has already received reliable patronage from the people.

—W. J. Hemphill, a prominent citizen of Clearfield, died on Monday, aged 79 years. The deceased was born in Nittany Valley, Centre county, at what was once known as the old Red Tavern, along the old State road. He filled several offices of prominence and in 1849 represented Clearfield county in the legislature. Three sons and two daughters survive him.

COLORED MAN WINS.

Allen Wins Over Sullivan in the Fortieth Massachusetts District.

Boston, Nov. 13.—The board of election commissioners finished the recount of votes in the fortieth councillor district to-night and Isaac D. Allen, the colored Republican candidate, was declared elected over Hon. John H. Sullivan, who now represents the district and who was the Democratic candidate. Allen's majority was only 62 votes. There is no appeal from the decision of the election commissioners, and the Governor's Council stands for the first time in its history solidly Republican, while Allen holds the highest political office ever given a colored man by the voters of Massachusetts.

The new councillor was born in slavery and escaped during the war, serving with Gen. B. F. Butler. He was with him after the war on the famous schooner America, which Gen. Butler owned. At the time of the Republican convention at which Allen was nominated the place on the ticket was offered to a number of prominent Republicans, but all refused it, not desiring to run in a strong Democratic district and be defeated. Allen's election was as much a surprise to him as to his Democratic opponent. Sullivan carried the district last year by over 5,000.

A Mother's Grave.

Earth has some sacred spots where we feel like taking the shoes from our feet and treading with holy reverence; are common words of pleasure are unfitting places where friendship's hands have lingered in each other, where vows have been plighted, prayers offered and tears of parting have been shed. Oh, how the thoughts hover around such places, and travel back, through immeasurable space to visit them. But of all the spots on the green earth, none is so sacred as that where rests, waiting the resurrection those we once loved and cherished. Hence in all ages, the better portion of mankind have chosen he loved to wander at eventide and weep alone. But among charnel houses of the dead if there is one spot more sacred than the rest, it is a mother's grave. There sleeps the mother of our infancy—she whose heart was a stranger to every other feeling but love, and who could always find excuses for us when we could find none ourselves. There she sleeps and we love the very earth for her sake.

Weyler's Little Account.

Havanna Nov. 12.—General Weyler reports from Cubanas that, in order to carry forward his plans, he sent out three columns, one column of six battalions, with artillery under command of General Munoz, marched to Manalita, and another of four battalions, with artillery, unde General Echgue, marched to Cayajabos. Colonel Zegura, with his command from Sorca and General Weyler himself at the head of a column comprising five battalions and six pieces of artillery, left Mariel to attack the front of the enemy, who occupied all of the avenues of communication in strong force. General Echague, with his command, arrived near Cayajabos on the evening of November 8 and found that the enemy was encamped in a strong position and as the action was about finished a stray shot wounded Gen. Echague in the right leg. On the morning of November 10 General Echague was reinforced and captured the rebel positions, which were strongly defended and the heights of Rubi, occupied by the rebels, were carried by the Spanish at the point of the bayonet at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The Spanish losses were six killed and eight officers and fifty-four privates wounded. Seven of the enemy's dead were found, but it is not known whether there were any more killed.

Life at Washington.

The inauguration of a President, the selection of his Cabinet, and the seating of a new Congress—national events of the coming year—suggest the question, What are the powers and duties of these high officials? During 1897 it will be answered through the Youth's Companion, in a remarkable series of articles by Secretary Herbert, Postmaster General Wilson, Attorney General Harmon, Senator Lodge and Speaker Reed.

The Illustrated announcement for 1897 (mailed free on application to the Youth's Companion, Boston), shows that the above is only one of many brilliant "features" by which the Companion will signalize its 71st year.

Three novelists who at present fill the public eye—Iran Maclaren, Rudyard Kipling and Stephen Crane—will contribute some of their strongest work. Practical affairs and popular interests will be treated by Andrew Carnegie, Hon. Theodore Roosevelt, Dr. Lyman Abbott, Madame Lillian Nordica, Hon. Carl Schurz, Charles Dudley Warner, Mrs. Burton Harrison, and a hundred other famous men and women.

Four fascinating serials, more than two hundred short stories, and ten times as many sketches and anecdotes will be printed during 1897; and all the departments will be maintained at the high standard which has made the Companion's name a synonym for impartial accuracy.

The cost of the Companion is but $1.75 a year, and we know of no investment that will give so great returns for so small an amount of money. New subscribers will receive the paper free from the time the subscription is received until January 1, 1897, and for a full year to January, 1898. New subscribers also receive the Companion 4 page Calendar, lithographed in 12 colors, which is the most expensive color production its publishers have ever offered. His Shoes Made of Human Skin.

A Philadelphia physician has his shoes made from the skin of negroes. He obtains the epidermis from bodies which have been used for dissecting purposes in a famons medical college. The thighs are flayed and the skin thus procured is sent to Womelsdorf, near Reading, and there tanned by a solid Berks county yeoman. The result is a beautiful leather extremely soft and pliable, very lustrous, and suggestive of a very fine but very thick piece of kid. The shoes are beautiful to look upon and grasp the feet kindly. The story is from actual personal knowledge.

—David S. Wagner, of Punxsutawney, who learned his trade many years ago with George W. Tate in this city, recently visited relatives and friends in this county. Age has dealt gently and kindly with Mr. Wagner although he has passed many mile stones on life's road, he has the appearance of being in the prime of life. Whenever he visits his native county, he always receives a warm welcome from his friends.

FIRE SATURDAY NIGHT.

The Coach-Makers Shop of Homer Martz Burned to the Ground.

Last night between the hours of twelve and one o'clock when the citizens of Bellefonte were all fast asleep the coach-makers shop of Homer Martz, located on Pine street caught fire and was almost burned to the ground before it was discovered.

Wm. Houser, whose residence and meat market are the next buildings to the coach-makers shop, was the first one to discover the fire. One of Mr. Houser's children was awakened by the light from the fire which shown into her room and she in turn awakened her father. Only about a dozen people were present and no alarm was sent in for the fire companies.

Mr. Mallory who lives across the street from where it occurred said that when he reached the scene the roof had fallen in and in a short time there was nothing left but a pile of smoldering ashes. It was a two story frame building and the contents were the running gear of two sleds, a sleigh, a phaeton and a valuable set of tools together with some stock. Nothing was saved from the building The building and stock belong to Homer Martz whose loss will be about $800.00 with an insurance of only $50.00 on the stock and tools and $150 on the buildings. As luck would have it the wind was south and blew the sparks back over the hill away from any other buildings. Had it been in an easterly direction there is no saying where the fire would have ended, as there was a high wind prevailing and the houses along that street are all frame.

To Sleep Well.

A light supper just before retiring is usually of advantage. Babies and brute animals are usually somnolent when their stomachs are well supplied with food, the activity of the stomach with-drawing the excess of blood from the brain, where it is not needed during sleep. On the other hand, people who are very hungry usually find it difficult to sleep. And, then, a habit of sleep at a regular time and during the proper hours should be cultivated in case this habit has been lost. In accomplishing this the attainment of a favorable state of mind is of great importance. Sleep can not be enforced by a direct exercise of the will.

The very effort of the will to command sleep is enough to render its attainment nugatory. The mental state to be encouraged is one of quiescence, one of indifference, a feeling that the recumbent posture is a proper one for rest and that if the thoughts are disposed to continue active they may be safely allowed to take their course without any effort toward control. This state of mind and thought is next akin to sound sleep.

Many mental methods have been advised and put in practice for the purpose of securing sleep, the design being to turn the thoughts from objects of interest to a condition of monotony; as by mentally repeating well-remembered phrases or sentences, or by counting. But the state of indifference, if this can be obtained, is likely to be the most efficient, as being the least active. The mere mention of these simple methods will be sufficient to suggest others equally effective.—Medical Record.

Bitten By a Cat.

We learn from Eagleville that 13 year old Stella Smith, daughter of John Smith of that place, might become a victim of hydrophobia While the child was playing with a litter of kittens nearly three weeks ago, the mother suddenly sprank at her and bit her on the fore-finger of the right hand. The cat died three days later, unmistakable evidences of hydrophobia having developed. The parents of the child summoned a physician, who ordered that she be kept in a dark room and not be permitted to see water or to hear it running. The doctor is hopeful that the poison may be eliminated from the girl's system

We will add that the most eminent physicians and scients assert that there never was a case of true hydrophobia, that cases supposed to be rabbies are more imaginary and emenate from the mind through fear. How confinement in a dark room will cure rabbies is beyond our knowledge.

Hanna Might Take It.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 16.—M. A. Hanna was seen yesterdey by a reporter, who tried to get from him a statement regarding the gossip connecting his name with a Cabinet position. "Your name has been used in connection with the Secretaryship of the Treasury," said the reporter; "will you make an authoritative statement with reference to it?"

"No, I will not discuss it at all," was the reply.

"But some of the newspapers have said that you declared you would accept no office."

"I do not remember ever having said anything of the kind," replied Mr. Hanna.

The opinion is entertained here that if President-elect McKinley should request Mr. Hanna to take the position he would accept it.

GOLDEN JUBILEE

Grand Demonstration by Republicans in Honor of Sound Money.

SATURDAY NIGHT'S BIG PARADE

Large Turnout of People in Spite of the Cold Weather—Cute and Comical Fantastics—Handsome and Gaily Decorated Floats—Hundreds of People in Line—Fine Display of Fireworks.

The grand demonstration of Saturday evening, in honor of McKinley and Hobart and the triumph of sound money, was a fitting tribute to the great victory won on November 3. It was the golden jubilee of sound money, and put the final touch to the great triumph in Centre county, won under the magnificent leadership of County Chairman Wm. E. Gray.

In spite of the cold weather the streets of Bellefonte were thronged with people long before the hour for the parade to start. Special trains brought large crowds from the surrounding towns and country. Many also drove in, nothing daunted by the cold.

The parade was a long one and reflected great credit on the committee of arrangements, headed by John D. Sourbeck, who worked hard to make the affair a success. W. E. Gray, Esq., was a spendid chief marshal and made a fine appearance. The aids also showed off to great advantage.

Some of the most notable features of the parade were the transparencies and floats, and the Junior McKinley and Hobart club, which marched splendidly and showed off to great advantage under the leadership of C. C. Bell.

The banners bore some very catching inscriptions, among which were the following: "Willie, the Pops Have Missed You," "The Court House Ring is Tattered and Torn," "The Major Won and Never Left His Porch," "The Popocrats are Floundering in Salt River," "The Hanna Barrel Smashed 16 to 1," "Penns Valley Solid—Nit," "Honesty Promotes Prosperity," "There's Nothing the Matter with Hanna."

The poor Democratic donkey was there in all his misery. An image held aloft on a pole represented "Willie Bryan the Kid Orator." The McKinley Jubilee Singers were a pleasing feature of the parade. The fantastics, with their queer costumes and comical antics caused laughter all along the line. The Lime Kiln club of Coleville made a hit with two live coons in a cage representing "That Same Old Coon."

Taken all in all it was a very creditable turnout, such as Bellefonte will not see again for a long time.

Many houses were handsomely decorated and the display of fireworks, under the charge of John D. Sourbeck, was all that could be desired.

Below we give a list of the Chief Marshal and Aids, together with route of parade:

Chief Marshal—Wm. E. Gray.

Aids to Chief—Amos Mullen, W. F. Reeder, P. D. Foster, J. L. Montgomery, S. H. Williams, S. H. Bennison, John Bilger, E R. Chambers, W. L. Matin, Geo. L. Jackson, Dr. R. G. H. Hayes, C. P. Stonerode, H. C. Quigley, Charles Bell, James I. McClure, Frank H. Clemson, Wm. Martin, Clement Dale, Frank McCoy and John C. Henderson.

First division, composed of cavalry—Marshal, S. B. Miller; Aids, S. H. Diehl and H. C. Brew.

Second division—Marshal, T. K. Morris; Aids, H. P. Harris and John M. Dale.

Third division—Marshal, H. C. Valentine; Aids, J. M. Laurie and Dr. M. J. Locke.

The parade formed in the vicinity of the Bush House, and the line of march was up High to Spring, Spring to Bishop, Bishop to Allegheny, Allegheny to Linn, Linn to Armor, Armor to Curtin, Curtin to Allegheny, Allegheny to Linn, Linn to Spring, Spring to Lamb, Lamb to Thomas, Thomas to High, High to Court House square and disband.

—The Homeopathic Medical Society, of Central Pennsylvania held its semi-annual session on Tuesday afternoon at Altoona. President Dr. W. S. Bigelow, of Philipsburg urged the appointment of a committee to consider plans of establishing a Homeopathic hospital either in Altoona or Williamsport. His expressions were unanimously approved, Papers on various phases of Homeopathic treatment were read.

—Work on the repairs at the Glass Works are progressing finely. The new roof will soon be completed. The place is being cleaned u neat as a pin and every thing is being made ship-shape.

It will not be long untill the fires which have been out for six years will be lighted and the hum of industry once again heard in that vicinity.

—Joseph Thompson the young man who sustained serious injuries yesterday morning, while trying to jump a freight, remains in about the same condition. It is not known for certain yet whether his limb will be saved or not. There are four doctors in attendance, two of them say it must be amputated, while two are of the opinion that it can be saved.

—The improvements at the residence of Rev. Crittenden, on East Linn street, are about completed. They consist of a two-story L, with a one story addition at one side to be used as a library or office. This will give them about twice as much floor room as they had and will be a handsome and valuable addition to the property.

—The Methodists opened their usual season of protracted meetings Monday night. The attendance all the week has been large and much interest is manifested. Already there are several seekers and many more under conviction. On Tuesday night Rev. George Hemingway, of Missouri, led the meeting and preached an eloquent sermon. The subject of which was; "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and loose his own soul."

—An interesting bit of gossip heard on the streets to-day is to the effect that Lieu. Gov. Walter Lyon will very likely go to Congress as successor to Col. Wm. A. Stone in the Twenty-third district two years hence. Of course, he would hardly make a formal announcement until Col. Stone is nominated for Governor.

Here is the way a prominent Quay man sizes up the situation: "Gov. Hastings will get a place in the Cabinet, Senator Penrose will succeed Senator Cameron, Col. Stone will take the Gubernatorial chair and Lieu. Gov. Lyon will succeed Col., Stone in Congress from the Twenty-second district."

—Messrs. Harper & Brothers will publish the following books during this month: "The Mystery of Sleep," by John Bigelow; "Naval Actions of the War of 1812," by Jas. A BOLD BAD TRAMP.

Attempts to Gain an Entrance to the Hasting Residence Last Night But Fails.

Since the return of Gov. Hastings and family to Harrisburg his handsome residence on Allegheny street has been occupied by Mrs. Hastings' mother, Mrs. James Rankin, and her daughter, Miss Bella Rankin.

Tuesday evening these two ladies sustained a fright that they will not soon forget. The facts in the case are these: Tuesday afternoon immediately after dinner a tall, broad-shouldered man, with gray mustache and slouch hat, rapped at the Hastings back door Mrs. Rankin was upstairs at the time and going to the window asked what was wanted. The man replied that he wanted something to eat. Mrs. Rankin kindly informed him that dinner was over and everything put away, whereupon he became very abusive and said that if our Saviour should come upon the earth and try to get anything to eat along that street he would starve. Mrs. Rankin then told him that if he would go down in the yard and help a man she had raking up the leaves she would come down and cook him some dinner. But Mr. Tramp could not see it that way. That was the last heard of him until evening. About 6.30, after Mrs. Rankin and daughter had finished their supper, their attention was attracted by the growling of a small dog belonging to them, which was in the kitchen at the time. They listened, but heard nothing. Shortly afterwards Miss Bella went to the telephone to call up a friend. The telephone is next to the side hall door and she was startled to hear a man's voice demanding that she open the door and let him in. She asked his name but got no answer. Then the man asked if the dog was cross. Miss Rankin said he was and that if he did not leave pretty quick she would turn him loose and he would find out for himself. After this they heard nothing more, but fearing that he might be lurking around the place, they telephoned to William Lyons and asked what they had better do. Mr. Lyons said he would send out the police to make a search.

It raised quite an excitement on the streets when it was reported that some one was trying to break into the Hastings home, and that the police had been telephoned for. In a shorter time almost than it takes to write it the yard surrounding the Hastings residence was crowded with people.

Officer Garis was sent out, and he made a thorough search of the neighborhood, but failed to find any one. Some very ridiculous stories were in circulation this morning concerning the affair. For instance it was stated that the man gained an entrance and stole a watch and chain and locket. Another was that the tramp walked right out of the house past Officer Garis, who never offered to touch him, etc., etc. All such stories are myths. The facts are as stated above and were gleaned by a DAILY NEWS reporter from Mrs. Rankin this morning and are absolutely correct.

Victory was Their's.

An exciting game of foot ball was played between the Bellefonte Academy and the Normal School of Lock Haven last Saturday afternoon. It resulted in a victory for the Normal School, the score standing 16 to 0 at the end of the second half. The playing showed considerable training on both sides, with a disposition for strategy and trickiness of movement decidedly in evidence among the Bellefonte players.

We take the following letter from last night's Tyrone Herald:

STORMSTOWN, Nov. 14, 1896

Editor Herald:—A man came to my place in Half Moon township giving his name as Miller on Friday evening just after dark, and said that my daughter, Mrs. Wertz was sick and wanted me to go up and see her on Saturday morning. He said he was informed that I had a farm for sale and that he had just returned from Kansas on the Friday before and had left his wife, son and daughter and $2,100 in money at Wm. Miller's in Taylor township, this county. I told him I did not have any idea of selling my farm, but if I got my price and the money down I would sell it. I showed him the place and he said he would take it, then asked me if he might stay until Monday morning. I told him he might. Monday morning he went to Stormstown, and when he came back he claimed the 'squire would make the deed out cheap for me. He then wanted my horse and spring wagon to go to Miller's, and asked me for my overcoat saying he would be back that day. He has never came back yet. No daughter, son or money at Miller's. He told the same story at Miller's. The coat was a good one, chinchilla, worth $8. The man is about 5 feet 6 inches high, long face, dark hair with grey mixed light mustashe, wearing freckled black coat and light pantaloons, low crowned hat, coarse shoes. I offer $5 reward for him and the coat.

A SAD ACCIDENT.

Joseph Thompson While Trying to Jump a Freight Falls and sustains Injuries Which May Cause Him to Loose His Right Limb.

A sad and shocking accident occured Tuesday morning at about 10.30, near the nail works. The local freight was shifting on the siding between McCalmont lime kilns and the nail works. When young Joseph Thompson attempted with the usual dare-devil spirit of boys to jump her. He had almost succeeded when a sudden jerk of the engine loosened his hold and threw him in front of the car crushing his right leg. The train was not moving very fast then and soon stopped and it is not known at this writing whether the car wheel passed over his leg or whether it slid him along on the rails until it stopped. Dr's. Harris and Hayes were called to examine him and said that the leg was badly crushed and would have to be amputated. Of course it is a serious matter, and the parents are hesitating about having it done. The doctors in attendance also desire that another physician be called in, but are certain that only amputation will save the boys life. The young man is seventeen years old and a son of Robert Thompson, the engineer who is in the employ of the Valentine Iron Co. He is also a brother of Harry Thompson employed in Rowes furniture store. Mr. Thompson and family have the sincere sympathy of the public in this affliction. It is only a short time since another son of Mr. Thompson's who was employed as a brakeman on the Lewisburg road lost his life. Only a short time before the accident occurred this morning. Joe had been warned by his mother not to jump on that train, but he persisted and the result is that the poor boy will probably be a cripple for life.

Schoolboys Long Ago.

Only sixty years have passed since the boys of Elton ventured to beg that pipes might be laid in some of the school buildings so that they need not fetch water from the pumps in the freezing winter weather, and the petition was promptly rejected, with the scornful comment that "they would be wanting gas and Turkey carpets next!" At Winchester, an other big English school, all the lads had to wash in an open yard called "Moab," where half a dozen tubs were ranged around the wall, and it was the duty of one of the juniors to go from tub to tub on the frosty mornings and thaw the ice with a candle. Comfort was deemed a bad thing for boys, lest they should grow up dainty and unmanly. "Cold?" said Dr. Keate, a famous head master of Eton, to a poor little bit of humanity whom he met shivering and shaking in the hall. "Don't talk to me of being cold! You are not at a girls school!"—St. Nicholas.
